Although she continued to live independently until this year, Joy's primary carer over her later years has been her nephew, Murray Smallfield. Joy is also survived by her sister Ngawini who was one of the early gardeners at EGGs. Ngawini and Joy planted many of the original trees still found in the grounds at EGGs today.

Joy's life was celebrated at a service at All Saints Church, 284 Ponsonby Road, Ponsonby on Wednesday 19th December 2018 at 1.30pm. Lorraine Pound spoke at the funeral, and she and Fiona Cottam were both pallbearers.

Lady Norma Margaret Sarah BEATTIE (née MacDonald) – Born 26th September 1925, died 9th May 2018 in Wellington, aged 92 years.

Lady Beattie, wife of former Governor General the late Sir David, had a long and fulfilled life, with a chunk of it spent in the public eye. She trained as a nurse in Auckland when she left EGGs, met lawyer David and they married when she was 24. They moved to Wellington when David became a judge. When David was made Governor General in 1980, the family moved into Government House where they welcomed various royals including Prince Charles, Princess Diana and baby Prince William. The famous "Buzzy Bee" toy was given to William by Lady Beattie.

Norma and David had seven children. Youngest son Simon – she discovered she was pregnant with him at age 47 – was diagnosed with Type 1 diabetes aged 14 and she and David worked to raise the profile and reduce the stigma of diabetes through their work with Diabetes NZ.

There was plenty of travel around the country and the couple undertook a lot of charity work, continuing this after retirement. For 23 years Lady Beattie was Patron of Diabetes New Zealand, bowing out gracefully in 2011 so she could spend time with her many grandchildren (21) and great-grandchildren (8). Norma was diagnosed with Type 2 diabetes in 2001 when she was 75, shortly after David's death, thus making her "legitimate".

Norma was passionate about tapestry and embroidery. Widely travelled, she was hugely inspired by the Kimberley, Australia, and its spirituality, and this was reflected in a special piece she created in honour of her eldest daughter Sarah who died in 2010 of a brain tumour. She found needlework highly motivating and meditative. Many people with Type 2 diabetes go undiagnosed and Norma's message to many was to go and get yourself tested; if there is indication, you can modify your lifestyle. Awareness is everything. A fitting message from a strong woman who always thought of others and, despite her high profile life, always put family first.

Whilst she passed away 14 years ago, in the USA, we'd like to share a little about her. Susan attended EGGs between 1959 and 1963 and was Prefect in 1962 and 1963. She won the Johnston Prize for English, the Special Prize for History and the Senior Speech prize in 1963. She earned a Bachelor's degree from the University of Auckland in 1966, a Master of Philosophy degree from Oxford in 1970 and a Doctorate from Harvard in 1975.

Susan taught at several universities, including Auckland, and spent 15 years teaching at Brandeis University in Massachusetts. In 1990 she moved to California, having been appointed the Marta Sutton Weeks Professor of Ethics in Society and Professor of Political Science at Stanford University.

For many, Professor Okin invented the study of feminist political theory, and continued to define its debates until her death. She received many awards during her career and published numerous books, including the agenda-setting Women in Western Political Thought (1979), in which she detailed the history of the perceptions of women in western political philosophy. Ten years later, in her book Justice, Gender and The Family (1989) – a critique of modern theories of justice – Okin demonstrated that political theories of justice needed to be recast to take gender into account.

Susan held a visiting professorship at Harvard University's Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Study and was on leave from Stanford, at the time of her death in 2004. She was found dead in her home in Lincoln, Massachusetts on 3rd March 2004, aged 57. At that time she was working on the implications of economic development policies for women's rights. The cause of death is unknown but foul play was not suspected.
